West Africans watchful for symptoms of Ebola

Ebola hysteria hits US shores

The Ebola outbreak in West Africa crossed to our shores last week with the death of a Texas man, but panic has been fervent for weeks with patients fearing every flu-like symptom is a sign they instead have the deadly disease.

4,447

The death toll so far in the outbreak has reached 4,447 from a total of 8,914 cases.

New cases

5K-10K

By the first week in December, WHO projections suggest there may be between 5,000 and 10,000 new cases a week.

Philadelphia. The city is looking out for signs of Ebola, but so are West African immigrant communities.

After a Liberian man became the first death from Ebola on U.S. soil, local officials and West African immigrants are working to make sure that nothing similar happens here in Philadelphia.

"We are doing our part to make sure it doesn't spread in the U.S.," said Pastor Moses Suah Dennis, president of the Liberian Ministers Association of the Delaware Valley. "We've been very, very concerned about that, given what we saw in Dallas."

Liberian Thomas Eric Duncan died Oct. 8 in Dallas, the first death in the U.S. caused by Ebola hemorrhagic fever. A nurse was also infected but is reportedly recovering.

Philadelphia Health Department spokesman James Garrow said local border officials and medical care facilities are closely monitoring visitors to Philadelphia for signs of the disease.

"Every day we work with hospitals in the city. ... They let us know what they're seeing coming through," Garrow said. "We're able to give them one specific thing — this is what we're looking for. ... It's just an enhanced version of what we normally do."

Dennis said that his organization is urging the community to keep anyone arriving from West Africa isolated from large groups of people for 21 days while checking their temperatures twice daily to be sure they don't have Ebola.

"It's just to be on the safe side," Dennis said. "We tell them this is for the good of everybody. So far, the community thinks it's a good idea."

Ebola precautions

What to look out for:

- Health officials advise anyone who meets the following criteria to seek medical help:
- Recent exposure to an Ebola patient or area where Ebola has been reported.
- Increasing temperature or fever within 21 days of exposure.
- Symptoms also include headache, vomiting, diarrhea, muscle pain, weakness, abdominal pain or hemorrhage.

Do you have faith the government can protect the city from Ebola?

"Not really, no. I'm not scared that it would hit here, I'm just scared that if it does hit, how fast it would hit. ... I'm not scared of it spreading, but if it did hit the city, I would be worried."

Shawn McDonald

"I'm confident that the city can protect us from an outbreak, but I am absolutely not confident that they can protect us from having cases."

NJ. NBC doctor sorry for violating quarantine

Dr. Nancy Snyderman / NBC

NBC's chief medical editor has apologized for breaking her Ebola quarantine outside Princeton.

"I am deeply sorry for the concerns this episode caused," Dr. Nancy Snyderman said in a statement read by anchor Brian Williams on Monday.

Snyderman, who lives in Princeton, and her NBC crew had agreed to a voluntary quarantine for 21 days after returning from Liberia last week. They worked with a cameraman who caught Ebola hemorrhagic fever and is currently being treated in Nebraska.

Last week, Snyderman was spotted in a car picking up take-out food, the Planet Princeton blog reported.

The New Jersey Health Department immediately issued a mandatory quarantine order for Snyderman and the members of her crew until Oct. 22. SAM NEWHOUSE

Anti-SRC bill killed

State Sen. Vincent Hughes' bill to give the governor the power to abolish the School Reform Commission, as candidate Tom Wolf has pledged to do if elected, was voted down by the state Senate's Appropriations Committee Tuesday, reports say.

Hughes introduced the bill in response to the SRC canceling public school teachers' contracts last week.

Only the SRC, with the state education secretary's support, can abolish itself, under current laws. METRO

Boyz II Men willing to help out cash-strapped schools

South Philly. The city natives said they'd help with school funding, if asked.

Just as comedian and Philadelphia native Kevin Hart donated to the cash-strapped school district from which he came, fellow natives Boyz II Men said they would also like to help the cause.

They just haven't yet been asked.

The bespectacled Wanya Morris said no city official has reached out to any member of the Grammy Award-winning group.

"And I'm hoping," Morris said. "I would love for somebody to contact me. I still live here, so I'd be open to whatever it takes."

The Philadelphia natives returned to their roots Tuesday when they hosted a concert at their alma mater, the Philadelphia High School for the Creative and Performing Arts, in the South Philadelphia school's auditorium.

The free concert coincided with the launch of their latest album, "Collide."

The group, formerly a quartet, met and formed their group while attending the arts high school in the late 1980s.

"I've had some discussions with some friends of mine to see if there's a way to help [with the school's funding crisis]," Morris said.

He said that the group routinely complains about the quality of the music on the radio.

"And it's nobody's fault but ours," he added.

Advice to students

'Keep protesting'

Singer Shawn Stockman saw the some 200 CAPA and Science and Leadership Academy students who stood up in protest for their teachers last week.

And he offered them some advice Tuesday: "Keep protesting."

"The more people that are bringing this to a head where the public can't ignore it, the better," he said. "So, please, keep pushing. Because these teachers need it, the students need it, the city needs it, whether they see it or not."

Boy, 10, beat woman, 90, to death in bed

Wayne County. Tristen Kurilla said he beat the elderly woman because she yelled at him.

A 10-year-old Northeast Pennsylvania boy was charged with beating a 90-year-old woman to death in her bed, reports said.

The boy's lawyer told the Associated Press on Tuesday that the boy may have mental issues and hopes to prove the boy is not competent to stand trial.

Tristen Kurilla, from Damascus Township, Wayne County, apparently told his mother that he lost his temper when the elderly woman, Helen Novak, who was staying with the boy's grandfather, yelled at him, according to Reuters.

Police told the news service that Tristen pinned Novak down on her bed, held a cane against her throat and beat her to death.

"I killed that lady," the boy told police, according to Reuters.

After a state trooper asked if he was trying to kill her, Tristen responded, "No, I was only trying to hurt her," according to Reuters.

His mother brought him to the state police barracks in Honesdale on Monday where he was arrested.

His mother told police that her son has a history of "mental difficulties."

Tristen's lawyer, Bernard Brown, said he is working to get the boy released on bail and into his grandfather's custody.

He is requesting that the boy enter a competency hearing and hopes to have the case deferred to juvenile court. METRO

The facts

Tristen is being charged as an adult since homicide is not covered under juvenile law in Pennsylvania.

- He also was charged as an adult with aggravated assault.
- Tristen is scheduled to be held without bail at the Wayne County Correctional Facility pending a court appearance on Oct. 22.

Sports gambling bill clears Senate

Legalized sports gambling in the state of New Jersey is one step closer to passing, reports said.

The bill, which could potentially help rejuvenate an ailing Atlantic City casino scene, passed in the state Senate Tuesday, according to The Inquirer. It is expected to be voted on in the state assembly on Thursday.

Even if it passes the Assembly, and is signed by Gov. Chris Christie, it could still face appeals from the four major professional sports teams and the NCAA which has in the past objected to legalized gambling in New Jersey. METRO

Fast-response team for US Ebola cases; Dallas nurse improves

CDC. There are 76 people still being monitored in the Dallas area.

The United States is establishing a rapid-response team to help hospitals "within hours" whenever there is a case of Ebola, the top doctor leading the response to the deadly virus said on Tuesday.

U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention director Dr. Thomas Frieden, acknowledging the lapses in treatment in Dallas for a Liberian man in late September told reporters: "I wish we had put a team like this on the ground the day the first patient was diagnosed. … But we will do that from today onward with any case in the U.S."

The nurse who contracted Ebola from the Liberian patient, Thomas Eric Duncan, in a Texas hospital, said on Tuesday she was doing well.

Prospects for a quick end to the contagion fell as the World Health Organization predicted West Africa could produce as many as 10,000 new cases per week by December.

President Barack Obama, addressing defense chiefs from about 20 countries, said "the world as a whole is not doing enough" to combat the hemorrhagic fever and must stop it at its source.

The nurse, 26-year-old Vietnamese-American Nina Pham, became the first person infected by Ebola in the United States while caring for Duncan for much of his 11 days at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas. He died on Oct. 8.

Pham received a transfusion on Monday containing antibodies to fight the virus, according to a Roman Catholic priest in Pham's congregation. Duncan did not receive one because he did not match the donor's blood type. REUTERS

Family who lived with Liberian Ebola victim showing no symptoms

The family who shared an apartment with a Liberian man who died of Ebola in Texas is showing no signs of illness, while the dog of a nurse who contracted the deadly virus is healthy and being cared for, Dallas' mayor said on Tuesday.

Thomas Eric Duncan's girlfriend, her 13-year-old son and two nephews in their 20s had been living with Duncan before he was admitted to a Dallas hospital on Sept. 28.

Rawlings said none of the other people being monitored after contact with Duncan, who died Oct. 8, have gotten sick. There is a 21-day incubation period for the virus that has killed at least 4,400 people, predominantly in West Africa.

The Ebola virus, which can cause fever, vomiting and diarrhea, spreads through contact with bodily fluids such as blood or saliva. REUTERS

Quoted

"So far, no signs of the virus in any of them. … We check them twice a day, and everybody's healthy."

Dallas Mayor Mike Rawling said on CNN

Islamic State. Expert: 'There will be pressure for US ground forces'

Islamic State is edging closer to Baghdad Airport, having taken control of 80 percent of neighboring Anbar Province. Meanwhile, Turkey has denied it granted the U.S. access to its air base to attack the Islamic extremists. Ivan Eland, senior fellow and director of the Center on Peace & Liberty at The Independent Institute in California, tells Metro there is mounting pressure to bring in U.S. ground troops, especially given Turkey's reluctance in fighting against ISIS.

Are all Western hopes pinned on Turkey?
Yes, because Turkey has a large air base that can be used to bomb Iraq and Syria more efficiently. Turkey has a large and effective army that could be used [on the] ground with allied air attacks against ISIS. The Turkish army is especially important, because the current local ground forces have all proved weak or ineffective against ISIS.

Is there a timeline when the conflict could finish?
It may take years to get rid of ISIS. ... Its leaders and fighters are hunkering down in the cities. MWN

Question

What are the next possible steps the US will take?

If it can't find regional ground forces to substitute for ineffective local forces, there will be pressure to introduce U.S. ground forces. The U.S. Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is already talking about it, and there is mounting pressure in some quarters in the U.S. to do so.

Obama and foreign military chiefs meet to discuss ISIS plans

President Barack Obama hashed out a strategy to counter Islamic State with military leaders from some 20 countries including Turkey and Saudi Arabia on Tuesday amid growing pressure for the U.S.-led coalition to do more to stop the militants' advance.

U.S. Central Command said the strikes on the militants' staging areas, compounds and armed vehicles were meant to hit supply lines and stop reinforcements.

Obama addressed the meeting of coalition military chiefs, led by Gen. Martin Dempsey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

The meeting was "part of ongoing efforts to build the coalition and integrate the capabilities of each country into the broader strategy," said Alistair Baskey, spokesman for the White House National Security Council. REUTERS

Vatican. Conservative Catholics seek changes to document on family, gays

Conservative Roman Catholic prelates on Tuesday vowed to change a controversial Vatican document that held out the possibility of a major shift in the church's attitude toward homosexuals.

The document, issued on Monday, said homosexuals had "gifts and qualities to offer" and asked if Catholicism could accept gays and recognize positive aspects of same-sex couples.

In a dramatic change in tone from past condemnatory language, it said the church should challenge itself to find "a fraternal space" for homosexuals without compromising Catholic doctrine on family and matrimony.

Cardinal Raymond Burke / GETTY IMAGES

The Vatican stressed on Tuesday that the paper was still a "work in progress" and a definitive version would be issued after the meeting of some 200 bishops, known as a synod, ends on Sunday.

Cardinal Raymond Burke, an arch-conservative from the United States, accused liberals in the committee that prepared the text of having railroaded the assembly. He said it did not reflect a consensus position and demanded changes. REUTERS

Christie sees voter support slip to new low

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, a possible Republican presidential contender for 2016, has seen his favorability drop to its lowest level recorded as voters worry about taxes, the economy, jobs and corruption, according to a poll released on Tuesday.

The Rutgers-Eagleton poll of 842 New Jersey residents showed that 42 percent of registered voters feel favorable toward Christie while 45 percent feel unfavorable. For the first time since August 2011, more voters in the state have an unfavorable impression of him than a favorable one, the poll said. REUTERS

Prison would 'break' Pistorius

South African athlete Oscar Pistorius would be "broken as a person" if he were jailed for killing his girlfriend because of his disability and psychological problems, a defense witness at his sentencing hearing said on Tuesday.

The 27-year-old Paralympic and Olympic athlete, whose lower legs were amputated as a baby, was convicted of culpable homicide last month for shooting dead his girlfriend, law graduate and model Reeva Steenkamp, 29, on Valentine's Day 2013.

Probation officer Annette Vergeer, who was paid by the defense to produce her report, said South African prisons were not conducive to the disabled and Pistorius would be vulnerable to violence and highly stressful situations.

"It will not assist him but break him as a person. The death of the deceased and the period since have been a far bigger punishment than incarceration," Vergeer told the court.

Back in action? North Korea leader reappears, with cane

North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, shown using a cane for support, reappeared in state media on Tuesday after a lengthy public absence that had fueled speculation over his health and grip on power in the secretive, nuclear-capable country.

Several pictures on the front page of the Rodong Sinmun newspaper showed Kim smiling and gesturing on a visit to a housing development, although there was no indication which day the event took place. He was surrounded by aides and wearing his signature dark buttoned suit, and he appeared to be supporting himself with a black walking stick.

There have been no official reports on the 31-year-old Kim appearing in public since he attended a concert with his wife on Sept. 3. He missed an important political anniversary on Oct. 10, as well as a recent session of the North Korea's parliament.

Kesha and Dr. Luke sue each other

Singer Kesha has filed a disturbingly detailed lawsuit against producer Dr. Luke (real name Lukasz Gottwald) alleging more than a decade of sexual and emotional abuse, according to court documents obtained by TMZ. The recently rehabbed singer claims that the abuse started almost immediately after she signed on with Dr. Luke when she was 18 years old. Kesha claims Dr. Luke made "repeated sexual advances" and forced her to imbibe drugs and alcohol. In a particularly startling incident detailed in the suit, Kesha says that after being forced to drink with him, she woke up the following afternoon naked in his bed feeling sick and sore with no memory of how she got there. She also blames Dr. Luke for the eating disorder that landed her in treatment, claiming he told her, "You are not that pretty, you are not that talented, you are just lucky to have me."

Dr. Luke responded with a lawsuit of his own, of course. Just hours after Kesha's suit was filed, the producer shot back with a suit insisting Kesha's claims are lies manufactured in an attempt to get out of her contract. He also says the singer previously tried to extort him.

Alamuddin takes Clooney's name, doesn't consult us

Meet the Clooneys: Amal and George. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Amal Alamuddin is returning to work after her honeymoon with her husband's last name — at least, according to her law firm's website. It's unclear whether she'll be going by Amal Alamuddin Clooney or just Amal Clooney. If it were up to me — and the fact that she hasn't asked me about it is a teensy bit insulting — I'd go for the longer version. It has a nicer rhythm to it.

LaBeouf explains why he thought life was a 'Cabaret,' chum

Shia LaBeouf finally tells his side of the story about his arrest during a performance of "Cabaret" in June! The "Fury" star went into great detail about the ordeal during a visit to "Jimmy Kimmel Live." It turns out that while drunk on whiskey after watching a World Cup match, LaBeouf was given a ticket to the show, starring Alan Cumming and Michelle Williams. And it was all downhill from there, he says, thanks in large part to a very seductive Cumming: "I give him a slap on the ass because I think he deserves it. He's seducing me. I mean, he's the sexiest man I've ever seen." And if you think that's good, you should hear how he describes jail.

We started with the International Cheese Plate which was mind blowing. ... The cheese plate comes with some honey, berries and walnuts; all were delicious. One of the managers described each cheese and its origin, which was nice to get a little history.

This place is so good that I'm bringing the future in-laws here for dinner for their first visit to Philly in the near future. This is in your hands, Crow and the Pitcher. ... In your cheese cart, I trust.

Highlight was the shared cheese plate with five different cheeses, sweet and pickled sides, and local honey! Also, they bring out fresh bread made in clay pots with seasonal butter before starting the meal — I could eat that for days.

Everyone at the table enjoyed the cheeses, and our server brought out more bread without us even asking when we were about to run out. ... The cheese selections were served on a slate ordered from mildest to stinkiest and the slate included a chalked name for each cheese in case you forget or want to order some to take home after the meal. CAN BART BLATSTEIN SAVE ATLANTIC CITY?

BOLDFACE

A.D. AMOROSI

A.D. Amorosi is a journalist covering arts, entertainment and food news and gossip. He can be reached at divaland@aol.com.

Developer Bart Blatstein must be in the mood for inexpensive (for him) casino-related land. In March, he paid $13 million for the site at Columbus Boulevard that Tasker intended for the dead-in-the-water Foxwoods Casino project. The other day, Blatstein phoned to say he was taking advantage of Atlantic City's current bargain-basement real estate prices, buying the Caesars Pier shopping center — all 300,000 square feet — with casino architect Paul Steelman.

Mention you heard that Blatstein snagged the Pier for less than $3 million, a fraction of its $200 million-plus cost, and he neither confirms nor denies. "The place is half empty, or half full, and my idea is to strengthen the Pier's existing tenants and add additional businesses," says Blatstein, referring to potential businesses from young, entertainment-minded entrepreneurs. "And no gaming," he adds.

Atlantic City's boardwalk, on a sunnier day. / ISTOCK

The Flaming Lips announced all the "fwends" involved in their "With a Little Help From My Fwends" Beatles tribute album, with part of the proceeds going to animal welfare. Collaborators include Miley Cyrus, My Morning Jacket and Philly's own Dr. Dog.

After its Restaurant Week dinner debut, Chops at the Comcast Center quietly opened its mod indoor space over the weekend for full service, with a New York strip as its signature dish.

Before the Philadelphia Orchestra's opening gala Friday, to kick off his third season as music director Yannick Nezet-Seguin dedicated a permanent photo gallery featuring orchestra players at the Kimmel Center.

The Bloody Mary Liberation Party's first festival/contest at Howl at the Moon on Oct. 19 will feature restaurants like ELA and Farmacia and judges including Jenn Gentilini and Brian O'Neill Jr., co-creators of Philly-based Lord Darnley's Bloody Mary Mix.

Seen on the scene

- DesignPhiladelphia's opening night soiree included its creator, Hilary Jay, Jane Golden of the Mural Arts Program and Josh Goldblum of Bluecadet, at Bluecadet's Frankford Avenue studio. Golden and Goldblum met up again at WHYY Studio's muraLAB event with Eagles linebacker Connor Barwin.
- Speaking of Eagles, Brian Westbrook and LeSean McCoy were spotted, separately, at Del Frisco's. Over at Brent Celek's Prime Stache, Todd Herremans and Riley Cooper signed autographs during a benefit for Herremans' charity.
- Between sold-out shows at the Academy of Music, Neil Young invited students from the HMS School for Children with Cerebral Palsy to sound check. Young's sons have cerebral palsy and he's a big supporter of HMS School.

Vera Farmiga loves her cast mates

Interview. "The Judge" actress really likes the challenge of acting with the greats.

Vera Farmiga joins a cast with a very deep bench in "The Judge," playing the high school sweetheart of Robert Downey Jr.'s Hank, a hot-shot lawyer and prodigal son who returns home to defend his father (Robert Duvall) in court.

VERA FARMIGA PLAYS ONE OF ROBERT DOWNEY JR.'S OLD FLAMES IN "THE JUDGE." WIREIMAGE

The cast here is ridiculous.
I know, I know. It's first-class. It's what you ache for as an actor, to be surrounded by greatness — because it lifts your game. And you learn, and you want to watch them, you respect them so much. They may seem daunting, but if there's any skittishness or nerves you get over it very quickly because of their sensibilities as human beings. They're very approachable. They're very open; they're humble. I spent more time with Downey than I did with Duvall, and yeah, he's this uber rock star, but he's got a real sense of vulnerability and openness — and even insecurity at times. You know that mega-persona? You don't feel that when you meet them. And I think what makes them great actors is that they're storytellers. It's not about them, it's about telling the best possible story. There's not much time to wallow in any insecurity.

You're no slouch yourself.
I've got a couple notches on my belt as well. But this is what you hunger for. Whether you're working with a heavyweight champion or whether you're working with a welterweight, it has to do with openness and humility.

NED EHRBAR

Chemistry

Getting down with Downey

You and Downey have some great chemistry.
It's not something that just happens. It can be, but I think it is a skill that you hone, which comes from listening to each other, provoking each other, responding.

How does one provoke Robert Downey Jr.?
Surprises; he likes surprises. Improvisation actually scares me. I prefer scripted improvisation. When the camera is off, I don't mind tooling around and then taking what works in that improvised rehearsal and then scripting it. But he's so loose, so carefree, so inventive that it's really challenging in a scene. He doesn't like repeating moments. He's confident enough to know if a camera has got a certain take, try something different.

His character doesn't come off so great when he assumes you're still a waitress when you had, in fact, bought the restaurant.
Yeah, that's fun, huh? [Laughs] Sure, he comes in, thinks he's hot s—. Big city lawyer, nothing's changed. He's got his head so far up his own ass that he flat-out doesn't inquire. It's all about Hank.

The breakthrough: Sarah Gadon

Introductions. The Canadian character actress gets her first big role in a big movie with "Dracula Untold."

Sarah Gadon plays Mrs. Vlad the Impaler in "Dracula Untold."
SIN BOLAND

Which 'Dracula' she loves the most: "I grew up with 'Bram Stoker's Dracula,' the Coppola version," Gadon says, pointing out that "Untold" essentially stretches out its first 10 minutes to feature length. She was also a total "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" fan growing up.

What 'Dracula Untold' does to the series: "Each version of the story speaks to its specific time. Our film is no exception. It's taking the Dracula story and putting a contemporary Hollywood stamp on it. It's using every special effect in modern technical filmmaking to add this visual element, putting it on the compelling aesthetic for which Dracula is so well known."

Graduating to giant productions after smaller films: "I thought it was going to be hugely different, but at the end of the day, it was like any film I'd ever done. You find a connection with another actor and everything in the background just fades away."

What draws her to David Cronenberg's movies: "I think so often you go to the movie theaters and you enter this code of ethics of how we're supposed to be watching a film. David's films don't do that. He doesn't allow you to watch his films passively. You have to engage when watching them. He's not afraid to challenge audiences or piss them off or make them work. I remember when I watched Michael Haneke's 'Funny Games.' It was like getting slapped repeatedly. Sometimes you want to go to the movies and eat popcorn, and sometimes you want to go ... and get slapped in the face."

ACTRESS SARAH GADON STARS IN "DRACULA UNTOLD," IN THEATERS NOW.
GETTY IMAGES

Why vampires never die (as an art form):

"We return time and again to vampires as a metaphor. It touches on basic human themes of love and death and struggle. It's a great catalyst to explore these ideas." Gadon

MATT PRIGGE

The details

Sarah Gadon

Where you've seen her: She's appeared in three consecutive David Cronenberg films, including "Cosmopolis," in which she plays Robert Pattinson's wife of 22 days, as well as his film "Maps to the Stars." Gadon also played the pregnant wife of Jake Gyllenhaal in "Enemy," and played the half-sister in "Belle."

Where she is now: She plays the goodly wife of Vlad III Tepes, aka Vlad the Impaler, in the origin story/reboot "Dracula Untold."

Where she's going: She'll be a young Princess Elizabeth in "Girls' Night Out" and appear in the thriller "The 9th Life of Louis Drax," with Aaron Paul — both due next year.

Your new decor bible

"IF YOU HAVE A SMALL RUG THAT YOU LOVE, LAYER IT OVER A JUTE RUG," SAYS GATES. THIS HELPS WITH MOROCCAN AND ORIENTAL RUGS, WHICH ARE EXPENSIVE.
Go for a full-size sofa says Gates. Friends and pets will thank you. / PROVIDED

PLUS

Must-have

Create an entryway

"First figure our what you need from the space," advises Gates. "Is it that you need a place to drop keys and mail? Then find a tiny console, find a basket." The key to decorating this tiny, but essential, nook in your home is finding things that are attractive — but also functional. "It can't be just pretty and it can't be just functional, cause then you're kinda depressed when you come home," says Gates. She recommends searching Etsy and eBay for items like statement-making hooks.

Small space tips

Live large

"Lots of tiny furniture can make a space feel super crowded," says Gates. She recommends decorating with a few larger pieces like a regular sofa instead of a love seat or a full-size armchair instead of something dainty.

Mirrors are your best friend

"Mirrors add light and are a great way to trick the eye," says Gates, who recently used them to brighten up her dark dining room. "I got three paneled French-style mirrors and positioned them on the wall across from the window," she explains. "So it now looks like I have two windows."

(Rug) size matters

Nothing makes a room look smaller than the "dreaded rug island" says Gates.

"That's when people place a tiny rug under their coffee table and no furniture touches it." For small spaces, the designer recommends getting the biggest rug possible.

As a general rule, she says to go for a rug that comes within five inches of the edge of the wall on each side.

"It makes a room seem bigger, because your eye gets tricked with this nice wide expanse of material."

Lucite furniture

Solid wood coffee tables can make a room feel crowded.

Gates' answer: lucite or glass tables.

Design. Erin Gates' new design book does more than look pretty on your coffee table.

Flip through the pages of interior designer Erin Gates' fun and informative new book "Elements of Style: Designing a Home and Life" and you'll feel like you're stepping into her new house. Gates, 32, created the decorating tome while moving from her hip (yet overpriced) Boston rental to owning a grown-up home in the suburbs. She documents the process and offers plenty of design advice — like what's on her popular blog — in this chic addition to your coffee table.

Beauty

If eight hours of sleep is a joke

There are times when exhaustion is unavoidable: crazy work deadlines, red-eye flights, sick babies. And sadly, it shows. For days after, your skin is dull, dry and a depressing sidewalk-gray hue.

Enter La Mer's Intensive Revitalizing Mask. The eight-minute treatment— packed with moisture-rich goodness like the brand's secret Miracle Broth and free-radical-fighting Lime Tea Concentrate — instantly perks up your complexion. Your skin will glow like you've just returned from a weekend jaunt to Big Sur rather than a torturous all-nighter.

Apply the soothing grapefruit- and mint-scented mask in circular strokes, and after eight minutes wipe up any excess with a tissue. Then face the world. TC

Biking just got (a bit) safer

Cycling. A new "smart helmet" turns the protective gear atop your head into a gizmo.

Black box recorders are no longer just for airplanes; the smart technology is now built into headgear for cyclists. The "smart helmet," made by a team of students at Oregon State University, in partnership with Intel, includes an LED headlamp and a microphone and above-the-ear speakers to make and receive hands-free calls. The helmet can also sync with a smartphone app and register data such as distance, speed and route. We talked to Kyle Dillon, a senior member of the research team, about why we should be biking with this safety product.

Where did you get the idea?
The idea began with our industry advisor at Intel and his children, because they sometimes crashed their bikes. He wished there was a way to retrieve info from the crash, so that he could better understand what had actually happened to his kids. From this sprouted the concept of the "black box," where the crash could essentially be "replayed."

This "smart helmet" crams all kinds of tech goodies into your headpiece. / PROVIDED

Why get one?

"If a cyclist sustains a serious injury and requires immediate medical attention, the automatic emergency contact and location alert could save someone's life," says Dillon.

Protection, via 3-D

Does the technology inside the helmet make it cumbersome?
We custom-designed and 3-D-printed the exterior of the helmet. Because the 3-D-print material is plastic, the helmet is slightly heavier than a regular helmet.

The helmet has speakers so the rider can listen to music, but isn't this dangerous?
The speakers are mounted inside the helmet, above the ear of the wearer and not over or in the ear. Compared to standard (headphones), this … allows users to still clearly hear external sounds, even at maximum volume.

Feast on fat

Nutrition. It's no longer the F-word of the food world — if you're eating the right things.

Disgraced for decades, fat's reputation is being redeemed one study at a time.

"Fats are important for hormone production, vitamin D synthesis, organ protection and nerve and brain health," explains nutritionist Dr. Joshi.

Get the vital fats your body needs by including these five foods in your diet.

ELODIE NOEL, MWN
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

1 Fatty fish

The American Heart Association recommends eating fish, particularly fatty fish such as salmon, mackerel and sardines, at least twice a week. This meat is rich in high-quality proteins and omega-3 fatty acids, which have proved to be excellent for the brain and the prevention of cardiovascular diseases.

2 Nut butters

Here's some good news: Peanut butter doesn't have to be bad for you. Joshi suggests introducing some natural nut butter into your diet, such as those made with peanuts or almonds. Go for the raw organic version that's unsalted and unsweetened to get the good fatty acids without all the other junk added to many brands.

3 Eggs

Common misconceptions about cholesterol have led many people to eat fewer eggs. While they do contain a lot of cholesterol, for most people only a small amount will pass into the bloodstream. On the plus side, one egg contains 6 grams of protein and healthy unsaturated fat, in addition to memory-boosting choline and zeaxanthin, which can help prevent vision loss.

4 Avocado

The green fruit is indeed full of fat, but the monounsaturated, heart-healthy kind that lowers bad cholesterol, with half of the total fat provided in the form of oleic acid, which has been praised in olive oil. It's a good source of vitamins A, B-complex, C, E and K and rich in minerals such as phosphorous, potassium, magnesium, copper, zinc, iron and manganese. The trendy way to eat it is on your morning toast.

Sykes is out of touch

Re: '3 things to know before you get rich' (Metro, Oct. 14) I just read blogger Timothy Sykes' column and all I can think is how pompous, condescending and totally out of touch with reality this guy is. You're writing in Metro, a free paper, not your millionaire-maker class, so how many people reading this actually have to "worry" about $250,000 Lamborghinis or 7,000-square-foot mansions? I'm willing to bet less than 1 percent. I used to think letter writers were too hard on Sykes. Now I see the obvious truth: His teachings don't connect with the vast majority. I say get rid of him. It's not like he needs a job!

Uncertainty over Ebola

President Obama recently addressed the people of West Africa on Ebola. As I listened to parts of the audio of the broadcast message, the president seemed to state, among other things, that you can't get Ebola from sitting next to someone with it. Do we know enough about this disease for anyone to make such a claim?

Things Union must do to improve next season

MLS. The Union has work to do if they want to become a playoff team in 2015.

Saturday's 3-2 loss to the Columbus Crew meant elimination from the playoffs for the Philadelphia Union.

It's the fourth time in five seasons that the Union have been eliminated and frustration is mounting within the organization.

The team must now look back on what went wrong and make tactical moves to propel the team back to prominence, but patience is starting to run thin among the faithful fan base.

"The guys are devastated," said manager Jim Curtin on Tuesday. "They feel like they let the fans down. We all feel that way."

Here are the three most important steps the Union must take in the offseason in order for that to happen when the next season arrives.

JEFF MCMENAMIN
@Jeff_McMenamin
sports@metro.us

Zach MacMath may not be the starting goaltender in Philly next season. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

1 Trade away MacMath

Rumors swirled back in July the Union were willing to trade goaltender Zach MacMath, after his sensational start to the season. The team needs to explore those trades again in the offseason and make something happen. The Union have too much talent on the bench in Rais M'Bolhi and Andre Blake for MacMath to continue in net. MacMath is a guy many teams would be interested in, whether for draft picks or a young piece to the puzzle. It makes too much sense to deal him in the offseason.

2 Draft an offensively gifted forward

The Union had the chance to draft Rookie of the Year candidate Tesho Akindele in the 2014 MLS Superdraft, but instead took goalie Andre Blake.

The forward netted seven goals this season on just 29 shots, and if given more chances, would've easily surpassed Andrew Wenger, who had seven goals on 62 shots.

After the poor scoring output the Union displayed toward the end of the year, they need to add a young striker to contribute in 2015.

The Union quickly need to address this, especially with names like Cyle Larin and Sagi Lev-Ari high on draft boards, and with players like Sebastien Le Toux and Conor Casey not getting any younger.

COLOMBIAN CARLOS VALDES WAS A VALUABLE DEFENDER.

3 Shore up the defense

The Union surrendered 48 goals in 2014. Only one playoff team, the Seattle Sounders, have given up 48 or more goals this season, but they also rank second in the league in goals scored with 61.

A quad injury to Sheanon Williams kept him out of several crucial games for the Union. They'll need to add an extra defender to shore up the back line in case something like that happens again. Amobi Okugo has also stated that he might test his stock overseas, which would be a devastating blow to the Union.

They'll need to sign or trade for a proven defender, as well as bring in youth through the draft.

Missing Sproles

Eagles still have return options

With Darren Sproles expected to miss at least the Arizona Cardinals game in two weeks, Chip Kelly highlighted the numerous options (like Jeremy Maclin and Josh Huff) the Birds have for returning kicks and punts. "If there was anything long-term, we'd take a real good hard look at it, but I don't think it's anything long-term," Kelly said.

No playoffs

Another heartbreaking end to season

The Union will look back on the 2014 season much like they did last year — in agonizing defeat.

In back-to-back must-win games, the Unionallowed leads slip away in the final minutes and now will be on the outside looking in yet again when the MLS Cup playoffs get underway in November.

On Saturday, the Union's 2-0 lead into the 77th minute against the Columbus Crew was erased by three Crew goals in the span of five minutes, capped by Jairo Arrieta in the 83rd.

In the Union's previous match against the Chicago Fire, Amobi Okugo's goal in the 88th minute broke a scoreless tie. The Union lead was erased when the Fire's Robert Earnshaw scored in extra time, ending the game in a draw.

Andrew Wenger was a rare bright spot for the Union. / GETTY IMAGES

"I'm a young coach," Union manager Jim Curtin said, "but I don't think I'll have two more devastating [results] for the rest of my career."

The offseason is filled with question marks.

Will Maurice Edu and Conor Casey stick around?

Will Okugo go overseas?

Will CEO Nick Sakiewicz be pushed out?

These are just some of the many key questions facing the Union in the offseason. It's very possible that big changes may be in order for the young club.

NFL. Eagles' Celek is selfless, an unsung hero for 5-1 Birds

Contributions from Eagles' tight end Brent Celek aren't easy to find on the stat sheet.

The 10 catches for 75 yards he has this season help, but as the honorary sixth member of the Eagles offensive line, one that generated over 200 rushing yards against the Giants last Sunday and protected Nick Foles, his value can't be overstated.

"Brent Celek did an unbelievable job blocking all night," fellow tight end Zach Ertz said. "He is probably the best blocking tight end in the league."

But it's not just blocking that makes him an unsung Eagle. Teammates and coaches praise the way Celek sacrifices his own statistical numbers for the team's success every week.

"He's the ultimate," Chip Kelly said. "You go back to the Detroit game a year ago when we're finishing the game off and he catches the ball in the open field instead of running it into the end zone, and then we have a kickoff and our defense has to go back on the field, he hook slides and gives up an opportunity to get a touchdown so we can just take a victory and get off the field. I think he's awesome. I love the way he approaches everything."

Brent Celek /GETTY IMAGES

On a young team still searching for offensive leadership, he is a great teammate for Nick Foles, who also leads by example, and for the offensive line, which has been battling through injury problems all year long.

He isn't the first tight end option for Foles — that would be Ertz. But it doesn't matter. What matters is winning and winning the right way.

"He's everything you want," Kelly said. "He's totally selfless. He's exactly what you want. When you talk about what a Philadelphia Eagle looks like, Brent Celek is what a Philadelphia Eagle looks like."

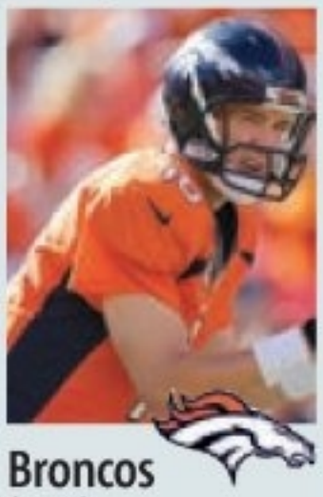
NFL power rankings | by Matt Burke

No. 1



Broncos (4-1)

The Broncos are obviously playing a first-place schedule, but things are getting ridiculous. They've already played the Colts, Seahawks and Cardinals and in the next three weeks they'll play the 49ers, Chargers and Patriots. They struggled a bit against the Jets this past weekend, but a road win is a road win.

No. 2

Chargers (5-1)

Like Denver, the Chargers struggled with an inferior opponent, allowing a season-high 28 points to the lowly Raiders.

No. 3

Eagles (5-1)

If the Eagles defense looks anything like it did in Sunday's 27-0 win over the Giants, Philly fans can clear their January schedules.

No. 4

Cardinals (4-1)

Carson Palmer threw a pair of touchdown passes with no interceptions in his return to Arizona.

No. 5

Cowboys (4-1)

If you have a horse like DeMarco Murray, ride him. It's worked like magic so far.

No. 6

Seahawks (3-2)

The Dallas unit is making one a turnaround, but the Seahawks' offense is surely better than just 206 net yards in one game.

No. 7

Ravens (4-2)

Joe Flacco deserves credit for the type of year he's having. His touchdown to interception ratio this season is currently 12:3.

No. 8

Packers (4-2)

Aaron Rodgers went into Miami and pulled off the Dan Marino fake spike. No one was offended.

No. 9

49ers (4-2)

The 49ers and Colin Kaepernick avoided one of the biggest upsets of all time on Monday Night Football.

No. 10

Patriots (4-2)

The Patriots lost both their leading tackler and rusher in Sunday's win against the Bills.

No. 11

Colts (4-2)

Only the Chargers and Cowboys have won more games in a row than the Colts, who have rebounded after their 0-2 start.

No. 12

Panthers (3-2-1)

The Bengals should have been fired up, but the Panthers held firm on the road and were pleased to leave with a tie.

No. 13

Bengals (3-1-1)

The Bengals don't get a pass for their tie vs. Carolina due to the absence of A.J. Green. The Lions won without Megatron.

No. 14

Lions (4-2)

How did the Lions look so good without Calvin Johnson? Oh yeah, they were playing the Vikings.

No. 15

Browns (3-2)

Shh. The Browns play the Jaguars, Raiders and Buccaneers in the next three weeks. Don't jinx it.

No. 16

Bears (3-3)

If the Bears are a playoff team, they certainly won't last long. You have no idea which Chicago team will show up week to week.

No. 17

Bills (3-3)

On Sunday against the Patriots, the Bills played like a team whose entire game plan on offense was, "give the ball to Kyle Orton."

No. 18

Texans (3-3)

Last week, Ryan Fitzpatrick had a 109.3 QB rating, Arian Foster had a 100-yard rushing day and J.J. Watt scored a touchdown.

Three other haunted attractions

Get spooked

Halloween is all about running away from — or running toward —things that go bump in the night, and the Philadelphia suburbs have some truly hair-raising outings.

The Bates Motel in Glen Mills is one of the scariest haunted houses around. The creep factor continues outside with a zombie corn maze and haunted hayride.

There's a good chance you'll come out of Pennhurst Asylum in Spring City hoarse from screaming your way through attractions such as the Dungeon of Lost Souls, the Tunnel of Terror and Ghost Hunt.

LuLu's House of Horrors in Plymouth Meeting takes visitors through haunted woods and a cemetery before arriving at the House of Horrors itself. The return trip has a corn maze — if you make it out alive.

Festival of Fears will scare the pants off you

You might encounter these two psychos at Festival of Fears. / TONY GARDNER

Halloween. Are you brave enough to pick the Psycho Path at Festival of Fears?

By day, he's mild-mannered Dr. Tony, your neighborhood chiropractor. By night, he's Doc Fright.

Every year, Fairless Hill chiropractor Tony "Doc Fright" Gardner turns his attention from alignment to scaring the pants off the thousands who flock to Festival of Fears.

Festival of Fears is back now, and open every Friday, Saturday and Sunday through Oct. 26. The festival doesn't have a permanent home and fans know it comes in a lot of iterations: Depending on the year, there might be corn mazes, hayrides or haunted houses. This year, the fear is outdoors in Warminster.

"We have two paths people can take. One is called the Village and it's much tamer, with a guided tour and story line," Gardner says. "Then we have the Psycho Path. That really ups the scare factor."

As the name suggests, the Psycho Path is for the brave. Without giving secrets away, just know it's a self-guided tour during which no one can be certain when man or beast will jump out (Although there is a no-touch rule.).

"Do not touch anything within these walls, living or dead, for if you do, it just might touch you back and that's most unpleasant," he says.

Enter if you dare. / TONY GARDNER
